

From the organizer of the Dallas demo

I arrived at the Belo Mansion at 1130 am with a small group of protesters. We immediately siezed the front steps of the mansion and began with chants of "Civil Liberties under attack What do we do? Fight Back!, " and others. The morning was cold and the rain became an issue. We were told to come off of the steps or we would be arrested. We were escorted onto the side walk. During the hour and a half protest about 30 other people arrived, made their voices heard. Resistance is resistance, no matter the magnitude.
