

On April 9, 2011 World Can't Wait, CodePink and other activists staged a peaceful protest of former Secretary of State Condoleezza during her speaking engagement at the National School Board Association conference in San Francisco, calling for accountability for approving war crimes on behalf of the Bush Administration. Four activists were ejected from the event by security.